

TABLE TWO CLUE SHEET

1. And to my baby sister, I leave my polystyrene-bead-filled chair.
2. Someone who studies bugs and also builds them.
3. Picard didn't get his morning tea because the machine needed a squirt of WD-40.
4. Nothing could prepare him for the great size, or extent of the cheese curds, fries and gravy he'd encounter after crossing the Canadian border.
5. Toasted bread cube outline or bounding shape.
6. One who enjoys in small bites a custardy dessert.
7. Careful, Jim! That ball of fur is an organic life-form, not a pair of bed-time fuzzy footwear!
8. Caveman say: me need Waldorf salad ingredient!
9. Spock actor would be good at Rio Grande deck-building game whose name means "supreme authority".

10. He hid his slow cooker in the safe.
11. Wil (aka Lieutenant junior grade Wesley Crusher)'s words, verbatim.
12. Yes I majored in fudgy treats and I have the document from an educational institution to prove it.
13. Clever gloves.
14. Hit-man seized by the devil.